Payne Stewart donned the plus-fours and Hogan cap that would become his trademark early in the week. He then added some substance to his style by posting the first of his 11 career wins. With a 7-under final round of 63 – still the lowest closing round by a Q-C winner – Stewart came from two shots back to win by a pair. After winning the United States Open four months before his death in 1999, Stewart called his 1982 win here his most cherished because it was the only win witnessed by his late father.
