John Senden sandblasted his way to victory at the 2006 John Deere Classic with a clutch bunker shot to within five inches of the cup on the final hole of the tournament. The 35-year-old Australian finished at 16-under par, avoiding a playoff, and became the 18th first-time winner since the Quad Cities event was founded in 1971. It was Senden's 139th start on the PGA Tour. His rounds of 64-69-64-68-265 gave him a 19-under par total for the tournament. Senden said his wife was particularly fond of the John Deere Classic, as she grew up on her parents' farm in Queensland, where John Deere farm equipment is a common site.
