On the second hole of sudden death, Zach Johnson hit a 192-yard 6-iron from the fairway bunker on the 18th hole that bounced on the green and rolled to within inches of the cup. The Cedar Rapids, Ia. native and former Masters champion tapped in for birdie to win what he consistently had called his personal "fifth major." At the time of his victory, Johnson had been a member of the tournament executive board since 2004. In the playoff he defeated Troy Matteson after both finished 72 holes at 20-under par.
